Program: Food Forests By Kelly Bull
"Create a resilient and productive edible forest that feels like a Willy Wonka wonderland in your own yard!"

Food Forests: Your yard has so much potential! Imagine being able to model your landscape after a low-maintenance and thriving forest that produces food, shade, beauty, and wildlife support. When planted in intentional communities of varying layers, plants grow better together than they would alone and require little from you. By learning a few simple design principles, you can get the most out of your yard and do the least amount of work!

Instructor Bio: Kelly Bull is a garden coach and ecological landscape designer with an infectious love for plants and an endless fascination for soil. As owner of Kelly Bull Permaculture Design, she creates custom designs for backyard ecosystems that allow people to connect with nature through a thriving low-maintenance yet highly productive yard. Having been a teacher for almost a decade, she is passionate about education and enjoys helping other DIYers who love to learn and like to get their hands dirty
